U. S. NAVAL CENTER

FARRAGUT

..... VS

MONTANA STATE

U N I V E R S I T Y

ADMINISTRATION FIELD at 1400

Welcome..

... to Farragut Naval Center!

On this great and victorious Navy day, I extend my heartiest greetings to you who are visiting Farragut Naval Center.

We have been in your midst during three years of war, yet for many of you this is your first meeting with us. Today you have the opportunity to see this huge establishment which has served such an important role in the training of thousands of men to take their places with the Fleet to bring victory to America.

At last we can feel free to relax and to enjoy a great American sport.

We bid welcome to our guests.

Commodore, U. S. Navy
Commander, U. S. Naval Center, Farragut, Idaho

Farragut's Physical Fitness Officer Joins in Welcoming You ...

What is more appropriate than a football game on Navy Day! Football is based on physical fitness and the Navy has emphasized that the fighting Sailor must be physically fit to survive the rigors of war and trials that face a man in any emergency.

On behalf of the Physical Fitness staff and Farragut's football team I want to add my welcome to the many that you will receive here from the Navy. We hope that you will thoroughly enjoy the game.

LT. B. E. KLOEPPER,
Physical Fitness Officer

In the foreground are shown clothes lines packed with recruits' washing and an active group gathered in a "smoking pit." On the "grinder" are companies marching towards the Mess Hall.

Farragut Salutes Navy Day, 1945, and Reviews Its Busy Past

Farragut is proud and happy today to play host to its many civilian friends in Northern Idaho and Eastern Washington and to show them one of the many recreational activities provided by the Navy for its personnel.

And today is the day of days for the Navy. For this is Navy Day. It is the one day in the year when the Nation takes time out from its many activities to pay tribute to the Navy — a Navy which carried the fight from Pearl Harbor through the Solomons, past the Mariannas, through the Philippines and finally to the very shores of Japan and victory.

Farragut played its part in this victory too!

The Center was carved out of heavily forested land at the southern extreme of Lake Pend Oreille. Work first started in the spring of 1942, and the Center was commissioned September 15, 1942, as a recruit training station.

In its brief three-year history, the Center contributed a great deal to the final victory in the Pacific by training approximately 300,000 Sailors for duty with the Fleet.

Northern Idaho and Eastern Washington played a large part in helping build the successful Training Center, and that is why it is appropriate today for citizens of the neighboring area to visit Farragut on Navy Day.

At one time in Farragut's history, it ranked as Idaho's largest "metropolis" with thousands of recruits in training. Today much of its former activity has disappeared, but it is still a large Naval establishment playing its part in the broad, over-all Navy program.

Farragut is still very busy and embraces the following activities: The U. S. Naval Barracks for the Western Sea Frontier, the United States Naval Hospital, the Re-Training Command, the Disciplinary Barracks and Personal Effects Distribution Center, which handles the belongings of all Navy personnel reported killed or missing in action.

Farragut rooters believe in backing up their Bluejacket team. The above picture shows the long lines waiting to enter busses two weeks ago for the trip to the University of Idaho game at Moscow.

Farragut boasts a cheering section and its own Wave cheerleaders.

Farragut Starting Lineup Boasts Plenty Beef

Game captain today is Bill McDonald, Chief Athletic Specialist, who was captain of the 1941 Tennessee State College team. Bill plays right end, while Charles Newman, husky 191-pounder from Louisiana Tech and San Diego Navy, is on the other wing. Newman was the standout player in the line two weeks ago when Farragut beat Idaho 18 to 7, scoring twice on pass snags and playing a rough defensive game.

Three backfield starters, Wellesley Magan, ex-University of Southern California; Cecil Bridges, ex-College of Idaho; and Bob Perkins, high scoring half-back, have had college experience. Stan Heath, who is starting at fullback, was an all-stater in Milwaukee, Wis.

The line is good and rough with Powers, Nawrocki, Roff, Burrows and Cameron, from tackle through tackle, all experienced men.

Farragut Coaches Have College Backgrounds

Farragut doesn't boast of any big-name coaches but its mentors have a wealth of past athletic and coaching experience behind them.

Head coach J. C. "Big John" Wofford is out of Southern Methodist University, of Dallas, Tex., and was a blocking back for a highly-rated Mustang team back in 1936 and 1937.

Jerry Stannard, of Spokane, is backfield coach. He played football with Eastern Washington College and Ottawa (Kansas) University. He coached Whitworth College in Spokane, in 1940 was named assistant football coach at Washington State and in 1941 returned to Eastern Washington at Cheney as assistant coach.

The third member of the staff is B. C. Jarrard, of Dublin, Ga., who is line coach. He played football at Presbyterian College in Clinton, S. C., from 1935-38 and for four years coached at Dublin high school.

Twenty-Four Reserves Will Be Itching

Farragut has plenty of reserves to fill in the gaps behind the starting lineup, and 22 of the 24 are pictured on this page.

The Ends: Al Krukas, out of University of Illinois; Bert Gillenberg, out of Lake Forest (Illinois) College; Chuck Mattox, out of Texas A. and M. and Southwestern University, and Johnny McCulloch from Kentucky Military Institute. They'll all be in the game and all are good.

The Tackles: Aside from Morris Hathaway, on an emergency leave, none of the tackles had college experience. Hathaway played at Michigan State. But still there are many of boys with plenty of beef and fight.

An exciting play is shown in a recent Center League football game shown above as a Ship's Company back runs into heavy opposition from Re-Training tacklers. The final score was a scoreless tie.

Farragut Also Has Four Departmental Teams

Farragut Sailors go all out for football and there is plenty of competition in a four-team Center Football League, which is barred to any player on the "Center Varsity."

The big guns in the League have been the fighting 18-year-olds on the Hospital Corps School eleven which has defeated all comers in the league. Next in line has been Re-Training, with Ship's Company and Hospital Staff teams making up the other two squads.

The teams play once weekly, either on the football field near the Hospital or on Administration Field where today's game is being played.

The purpose of the league is to extend an opportunity to all hands who are interested in playing football, and to help them keep in top physical condition. Approximately 200 enlisted personnel stationed here are participating in the fall football program.

for Chance to Play in Montana Game

Bartl Main, 205 pounds; Carl Nelson, 230; R. C. Newman, 180; and Harry Stigler, 200.

The Guards: Grover Cox, Ed Ledger, who has been on the injured list for the last week, Don Roos, R. C. Seyferth, of Wayland College, and Blaine Tanner, out of Lee and McRay J. C. down in North Carolina.

The Centers: Ed Lewandowski and Charlie Lottes are both good.

The Backfield: George Kaufman and R. G. Patterson are ground gainers . . . and here are some others to watch: Harry Grivet, Vince Petrella, Jimmy Edwards, R. D. Kasman, Graydon Simpson, H. B. Wolfe and Wakyn Ferris.

All Mont. Coaches Have Creditable Records

Returning to football wars for the first time since the 1942 season, the Montana Grizzlies came out of hibernation with stiff joints in need of a quick rejuvenation by Coach George (Jiggs) Dahlberg.

Dahlberg has been assistant football coach at Montana State University for seven years but his principal duty is coaching basketball. As football coach and acting director of athletics, Dahlberg took over the duties of Doug Fessenden, pre-war grid mentor, who enlisted for Army service in 1942.

George P. "Jiggs" Dahlberg

Pending Fessenden's return, Dahlberg is being assisted by three ex-varsity men and a trainer.

After serving as an Army physical education director for seven Mountain states with headquarters in Denver, Major Fessenden last summer was appointed athletic director and head coach of the Army Air Force Training Command team at Fort Worth, Tex., the team known a year ago as the Randolph Field Ramblers.

Naseby Rhinehardt, who is one of a few former Grizzly nine-letter men, has returned from war work to continue with his old job as head trainer.

Major Jim Brown, reserve Army officer on an extended leave, is assistant coach helping with the backfield. Brown coached the Montana freshman team in 1940, was assistant basketball coach in 1941 and then took a position as a high school coach in Miles City, Mont. Brown has just completed 58 months of active service in the Army which included more than two years abroad in France, Belgium and Germany before he was returned to the United States and placed on an inactive status.

Bill Mufich, a former lieutenant (j.g.) in the Navy Air Corps, is helping coach the ends and line. Ed Rossmiller, a former track star with North Dakota University and also a returned veteran, is also helping with the line.

Dahlberg is from Butte, Mont., and coached several Montana high schools before he returned to the State University to serve as basketball coach. He served in the Army as a lieutenant before his discharge earlier this year.

Post-War Mont. Players Have Little Experience

Montana State University's football team was started this year on a belated football schedule with one purpose in mind: to lay the ground-work for a well-organized team in 1946 when the Grizzlies expect to return to Pacific Coast competition.

The schedule this year offers Coach Dahlberg a chance to season a green freshman team into a nucleus for next year's eleven. From the start the Grizzly mentor hasn't been too optimistic about the team but declared, "We can't expect too much from this inexperienced team but I am sure they will make a good showing even if they don't always win."

The squad is composed almost exclusively of freshman players but includes five sophomores and two seniors. The players are all young. Don Gall, a 237 pounder, is the heaviest man on the team. Only three other players top the 200 pound marker. Some of the players' pictures are displayed on this page.

The team is built around Ed Gallagher, 1944 all-state halfback with Anaconda, and Bill Preuninger, Missoula's 1943 all-state fullback. Wally Stephens, also a fullback, was outstanding last year with Billings, runner-up in state championship.

Some of the players are from Missoula's championship team last year: center George Lewis, tackle James Kirkemo, tackle Bob Rehfeld and end Garfield Thorsrud.

There are several members of past Grizzly squads out for the team and this group includes quarterback Harry Thompson, who dropped out of school 13 years ago and is back; guard Paul Williamson, squad member in 1942; Arch Craft, who played freshman ball in 1939.

The war veterans include: halfbacks Everett Smith and Ed Lyman, quarterback Thompson; guard Craft; tackles Glen Kirkaldie and John Donovan; and end Clark Dayton.

Craft was an Air Corps pilot and before he was discharged was on 34 bombing missions over Germany. Shepard served four years in the Army, spending over two years abroad.

Montana's football team lines up to look at the birdie with its 26 squad members and four coaches. The youthful football team is the first in the past three years. It has plenty of beef, and all it needs to put the team right back up where the Grizzlies ranked before the war is experience and more game

Montana, Newest State University, Is Growing Rapidly

Montana State University is located in the Garden Spot of Montana — Missoula. Missoula has a population of 18,000 and this year the school has an enrollment of 1,048 students, 686 women and 362 men.

The school was opened in 1895. Although it is the youngest of the state universities, its expansion has been rapid. The faculty numbers more than 100 members and before the war the student body was well over the 2,000 student mark. There are 16 modern brick buildings and several frame structures on the campus. The campus extends over 100 acres.

A special feature of the school, now that the war is over, is to help veterans returning to college.

An Office of Veteran Education has been opened on the campus to assist the returned veteran in registration and in relations with the Veterans' Administration. The office will assist in handling problems of arrangements of classwork, adjustment of credit, counseling and housing.

The school has waived the requirement of completion of physical education and military science for returning veterans.

Here is a brief sketch of Montana's past football record:

Montana has had a long record as an outstanding football team in the Northwest, but its greatest year was in 1937 when the Grizzlies defeated Whitman, Texas Tech, Oklahoma City, San Francisco, Montana State, Gonzaga and North Dakota before losing a 6 to 0 tilt to the University of Idaho. This loss knocked them out of the Texas Cotton Bowl competition.

Montana lost all of its games in 1942, as the war drafted the majority of the 1941 team. In the last pre-war year, 1941, the Grizzlies won six games and lost three.

experience. There's lots of pep and vinegar on the team and although the squad has taken two defeats, the players will be in there pitching to upset Farragut. For names of the players consult the team roster on the next page. Farragut's players also are listed there according to their sweater numbers.

Bluejackets Heavy Favorites In Game Today - and Here's Why

Farragut's Bluejackets take to the field today in a top-heavy role of favorites to defeat the Montana State University Grizzlies in the first of their two home games this season.

The Bluejackets are undefeated with a 36-0 victory over the Pocatello (Idaho) Marines and an 18-6 conquest of the University of Idaho two weeks ago. On the other hand, the Grizzlies lost their opening game 44 to 13 to Utah State and went down to a 46-0 defeat at the hands of the University of Idaho last Saturday. On the basis of the Idaho games, the sailor team emerges as a favorite.

This is Farragut's first venture into a football schedule with teams off the Center.

After this game, the Grizzlies play the Pocatello Marines at Missoula on November 10 and close their season with a return engagement with the Farragut team November 22 at Missoula.

Farragut's big test is coming up a week from Sunday when the Navy team smashes into Fort Warren Army at Cheyenne, Wyo., and the concluding two games on the schedule are return dates with the University of Idaho here November 10 and Montana State University.

On the eve of the game, Farragut's starting backfield has been shifted around to give more attention to straight-power football. Stan Heath, an all-state football player from Milwaukee, Wis., has been shifted to full-back, and the Sailors' top scorer, Bob Perkins, was moved to the left-half spot, replacing R. G. Patterson.

Both teams are in top shape for today's game.

So the kickoff at 1400 Navy time, 2 P.M. civilian time.

And the game is on. . . .
